

I would strongly discourage the FAA from implementing a restricted area for a temporary (annually) installation of a balloon with no other justification. This is typically addressed via NOTAM, which works fine in the rest of the system. An alert area (as proposed by AOPA) is also overkill, but a reasonable compromise. Thank you.